

Air Pollution: Out of Sight, Out of Mind – 26th March 2013

Presented by the Scottish Environment Protection Agency (SEPA)

Air pollution is one of the biggest environmental risks to human health and poor air quality contributes to the loss of more lives than road traffic accidents. Through presentations, lively debate and practical demonstrations, the Scottish Environment Protection Agency explores the state of air quality in Scotland, its impact on human health, and what can be done about it.
