

Scottish Air Quality Monitoring Strategy Aim of the Strategy/Workshop

Air Quality Monitoring Strategy Steering Group

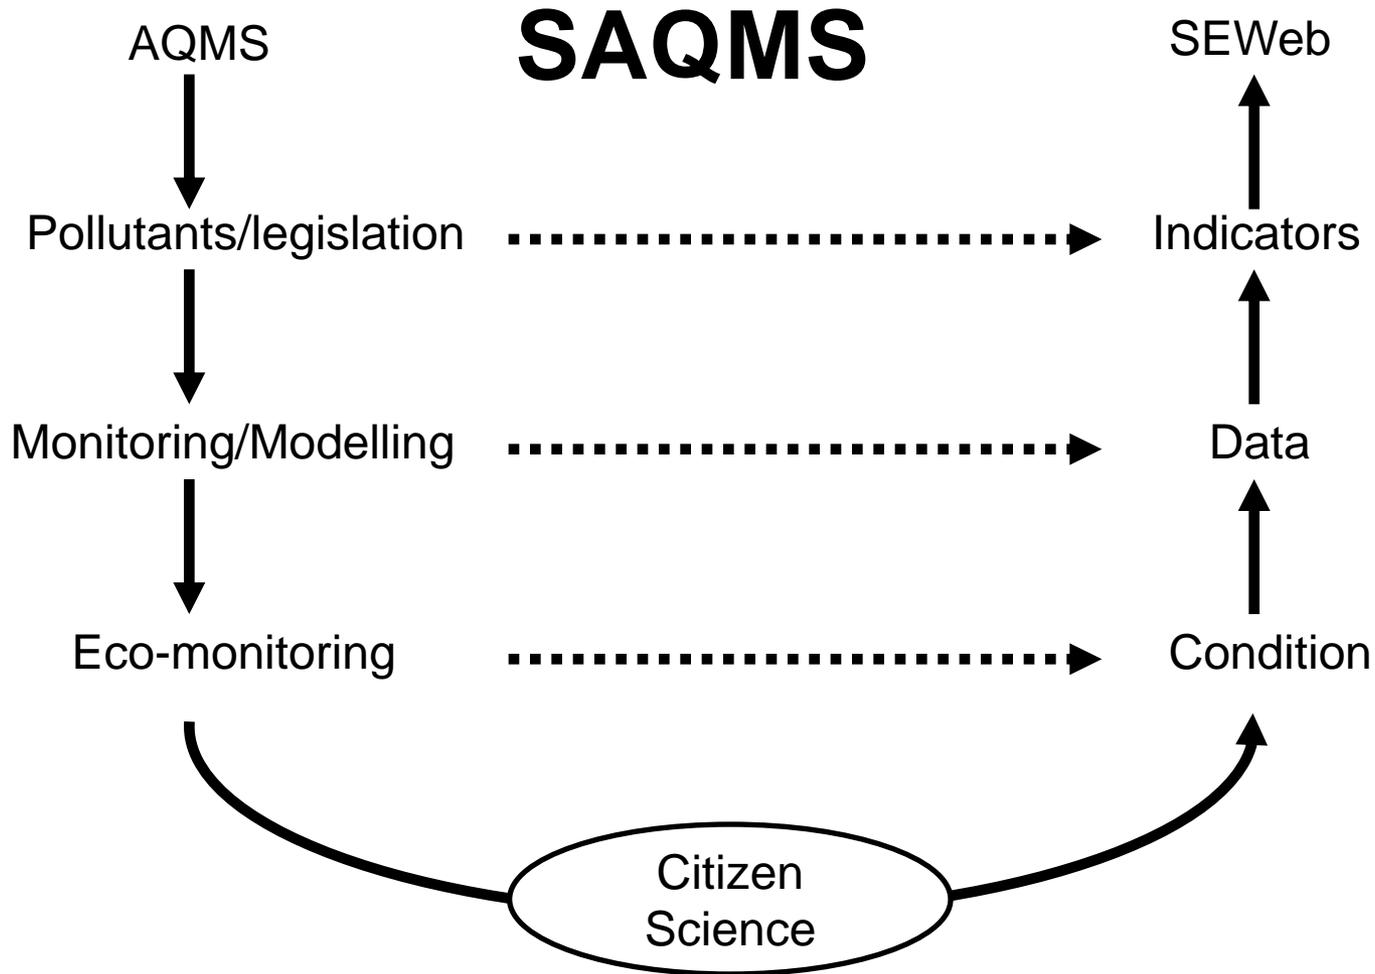

- Multi-agency group
- Provide assistance in developing the Monitoring Strategy and Identify key areas to be covered within the Monitoring Action Plan

Strategy Objectives...

The strategy will aim to fulfil the CAMERAS Objectives:

- Provide information on the pressures upon the environment
- Provide the information to enable the assessment of the state of the environment and where possible provide evidence for the consequences of change
- Focus on those parts of the environment which are most likely to be subject to change, have high environmental value and affects society
- Detect where possible the environmental consequences of new, unanticipated environmental pressures and events
- Deliver statutory and policy obligations

The Strategy will aim to cover:

- Key pollutants and legislation drivers
- Current state of play with monitoring/modelling and identify potential overlaps/gaps
- Identify key indicators and data required to report on condition of the environment and human health
- Identify the best way to present this information for maximum use

Linking with other Topics

The Strategy will consider the link across topics areas within CAMERAS and follow the Monitoring Action Plan theme...

Workshop

It is planned that the workshop will help to identify;

- The importance of the current data available
- Potential gaps in the data, particularly when considering reporting requirements and the potential for aligning data sets
- Future drivers for AQ in Scotland
- Ways to enhance public awareness and participation within AQ
- How do we use/present the data obtained through public engagement – i.e. Citizen Science projects

Workshop Programme

- Split into 3 key areas
- Key talks will be followed with breakout sessions
- Set questions will be discussed during each session – write down thoughts to Questions and stick to the posters at the beginning of the Breakout Session
- Feedback will be provided at the end – along with general discussions
