Cleaner Air for Scotland review

- Launched November 2018 by Cabinet Secretary for Environment, Climate Change & Land Reform

The review will:

- Review the progress and impact of actions in the current strategy
- Identify/assess new evidence/developments since 2015
- Consider whether there are any significant evidence gaps, and which of these may be addressed as part of the review
- Make recommendations for future objectives for air quality policy, including measurable outcomes, milestones and indicators against which progress on improving air quality can be measured
- Make recommendations on actions needed to achieve those outcomes, milestones and indicators, and any areas for future research/analysis
- Set out a strategic vision and focus on the necessary framework, processes and actions for delivery of the new strategy.
